

Support Climate Action

The impacts of climate change are happening right now across California: droughts, wildfires, extreme heat, air and water pollution. According to the latest scientific research, we only have until 2030 to determine how to stop the most catastrophic impacts of the climate crisis.

Climate action is an urgent imperative and it is our best opportunity to address injustice at scale, touching every part of California's economy and infrastructure. At CLCV, we believe that radical change is necessary and that only by transforming our political system by electing environmental champions, will we create the opportunity to take the bold action needed on climate change.

CLCV, a 501(c)(4) organization, is in a unique position, in that it is the non-partisan, non-profit organization that serves as the political arm of California's environmental movement. We are the state's voice—statewide and nationally—and our goals are to:

- Cultivate and elect environmental champions
- Turn electoral victories into policy wins
- Hold lawmakers accountable, and
- Build political power among all communities, including underserved communities, to achieve climate justice.

CLCV inspires hope and action and fights for equity—from voting rights to clean air and water—for all Californians.

“CLCV is known for their crucial state and federal endorsements. In supporting CLCV, we became aware of their depth of experience in cultivating and electing environmental champions at the regional and city levels too.”

Nancy Sutley, Chair of White House Council on Environmental Quality (2009-2014)

“We need to expand knowledge about voting and access to voting for women, people of color and young people. CLCV's efforts to expand the electorate and make civic participation accessible is one critical step in achieving climate justice and overcoming the climate crisis facing our world.”

Nicole Taylor, President and CEO, Silicon Valley Community Foundation

“Our elected officials are accountable to the people and CLCV ensures that the public knows how our legislators vote when it comes to environmental policy. The transparency they provide is vital to an effective democracy and deserves our support.”

Wendy-Sue Rosen, Land Use Consultant and Environmental Advocate

CLCV Eco Power Caucus

Members of the CLCV Eco Power Caucus include individual and organizational benefactors who prioritize the environment. By becoming a member of the Eco Power Caucus, you join a community of donors who are demanding Bold Climate Action and making their voices heard on the environment.

The Eco Power Caucus is CLCV's 501(c)(4) leading annual fund program and provides unrestricted operating support. Funds raised through the Eco Power Caucus provide essential resources for CLCV's year-round initiatives which build power across all regions of the state, educate the public on the most pressing environmental issues, elect environmental champions, expand voting rights, shape the public narrative around climate, and ultimately protect our future for generations to come.
